THEY ALL FLOCKED BACK

Old Patrons of the Montana in Their Old Quarters.

The Reopening of a Theme for Mutual and Heartiest Congratulations—Everything Running in First Class Style as Usual.

The reopening of the Montana yesterday was unattended by any demonstration or display of any kind, only excepting the running up of the stars and stripes on the flagstaff. So natural did everything seem within that one with difficulty could realize that it had been closed at all. To the old boarders and habitués it was as if they had been off on a trip somewhere and had just got back home again. None of the old comforts and luxuries were missing and everybody wore a smile of pride and satisfaction in finding everything just the same, with the exception of new faces among the employees.

The old boarders kept coming in all day and registering with heartfelt congratulations all around. It was a busy day for the porters and bell boys especially, so many people were moving in and settling their rooms. It was a busy day too for the waiters since the attendance at every meal assumed large proportions and they were unengaged to the last degree. It was a pretty busy day for the gentlemen at the bar also, for in the absence of any formal demonstration a majority of the gentlemen felt it incumbent upon them to "wet" the re-opening on their own hook.

In the evening, with the hotel all lighted, it did look attractive. Everybody in Anaconda felt rejoiced to see the magnificent hotel again in full blast. Within there was a charming warmth and pleasantness and all felt it was good to be there.

Three pages and a half of the register had been covered with names by midnight last. Among the guests from out of town were C. C. Thurston and W. M. Bickford of Missoula; Senator D. J. Hennessy, Father Van de Ven, Judge W. W. Dixon, Judge Kirkpatrick, E. M. Trask, G. W. Stapleton, H. L. Frank, W. J. Penrose, William Toole of Butte; C. A. Broadwater, A. W. Lyman and A. J. Steele of Helena; T. E. Collins of Great Falls; J. H. Bowen of Glendale; W. B. Chandler of Minneapolis.

ST. MARK'S CORNER STONE.

It Was Laid With Appropriate Exercises Yesterday Afternoon.

The corner stone of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal church was laid at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon with appropriate exercises. Rev. E. G. Prout of Deer Lodge conducted the services and Rev. S. C. Blackiston of Butte delivered the address. Owing to the disagreeableness of the weather, Mr. Blackiston did not prolong his remarks, but gave a brief, concise, yet entertaining sketch of the church. A choir, consisting of Mrs. L. G. Smith, soprano, Mrs. Kennicott, alto, Carl Hoenig, tenor, Fred Sully, bass, sang excellently. Mrs. McKinney presided at the organ. Beneath the corner stone was deposited a short history of the parish; the names of the communicants; the names of members and subscribers; the names of the church societies and works; a copy of the STANDARD; copies of the church papers for this week; copies of the Bible, prayer book and hymns used in the church services; a copy of the order of the services in laying the corner stone; a silver dollar of the date of 1890; the names of the president of the United States, the governor of the state and the mayor of the city.

A Disorderly House.

By the Standard's Special Wire.

BUTTE, Oct. 1.—The Finland saloon, on Arizona street, has lately become an intolerable nuisance. The habitués drink heavily, carouse wildly at night and frequently carry their scrapes out onto the sidewalk, where they fight them out. Complaints have flowed in thick and fast to-day. Late this afternoon a big "scrap" called the officers there. They all hung together and none could be singled out for arrest. All this evening Chief Carroll kept receiving more complaints, and finally went in alone to have a talk with the proprietor. The chief told him he must run a better house or have the key turned in his door. Presently, Fred Colson stepped up to the chief and in very impudent language told what he thought of the chief's intrusion. Colson was immediately put under arrest and jailed. At tomorrow evening's council the chief will appear and ask that the license of this place be revoked.

Benedict Pleads Guilty.

Special Correspondence of the Standard.

BUTTE, Oct. 1.—George C. Benedict has been confined at the county jail for nearly six months. At the recent session of the grand jury he was convicted of cheating. At first he entered a plea of "not guilty." Benedict has become tired of waiting and has decided to waive the chance of release afforded him by a trial and to immediately begin serving out his penal imprisonment. So through his attorney, Judge Lippincott, Benedict withdrew his plea of "not guilty" and entered a plea of "guilty" to petty larceny. This met with the approval of the district attorney and so was allowed by the court. Benedict will receive his sentence Saturday morning.

A Prize Problem Solved.

Special Correspondence of the Standard.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

"The Pearl of Savoy" Last Night—The Clara Morris Company.

Caroline Gage and her company closed a very successful engagement at Evans opera house last night with a very superior presentation of "The Pearl of Savoy." Miss Gage has made herself a favorite here, and she can always count on a good audience in Anaconda. Of uncommonly attractive personal appearance she displays marked ability for so young an actress, and, with training and experience, she will unquestionably be a shining light in her profession. She was seen to especial advantage last night in the "mad scene" of the "Pearl of Savoy." The support was fair and the play as a whole proved highly acceptable to the audience, who accorded the young actress most liberal applause.

The sale of seats for the Clara Morris engagement will begin at 9 o'clock this morning at Playter's drug store. The free list will be suspended, and the prices will be $1 and $1.50. Next Monday evening Miss Morris will play "Camille" and on Tuesday evening "Renee de Moray." Comment on Miss Morris' ability as an actress is almost superfluous. An exchange says of her:

"The 'Camille' of Miss Morris is that which is reflected from the pages of Dumas. She divests the character, in part, of its less grateful quality. She purifies and poetizes. She ennobles, and that without losing sight of the hard reality. After witnessing her performances, we can readily understand how it was that she worked so great a change in the popular regard of the drama. Long before Miss Morris essayed the role, Dache had excited Paris with her rendition, and Matilda Heron had gained her greatest fame in its interpretation. The latter was looked upon as the only 'Camille.' Her laurels were undisputed. Her conception, though wondrously powerful, lacked idealization, and when Miss Morris appeared with a portrait of Camille, shorn of cardinalities, the contrast was a surprise and a gratification. From the first moment of the play to the last, the sympathies of the auditor are constantly manifest and warmly enlisted. The treatment, however, does not transgress the necessity of things. The lily is not painted too white. The stem is there. The flower ever droops. But it is a lily—it is a flower—nevertheless. The merit of the impersonation lies rather in the beauty of the conception than in the dramatic effects of the situation. The colors have been laid upon the canvas by the hand of an artist whose soul was imbued with a love for the ideal. Yet the work is abundant in force and strong and definite in its lines. It tells of suppressed suffering, of bitter pangs, held in agonizing check. We see the 'pent-up heart,' and are led on to the moment of the breaking, and to the final sorrow and recompense, with every pulsation eloquent at the oppressing and absorbing grief and longing.

GAMBETTA'S HEART.

It Was Preserved, but Nobody Knows Where It Is.

Another mystery has been added to the list which deals with the post mortem wanderings of the hearts of great men and women. The question of the hour which is heart at every turn throughout Paris is, "What has become of Gambetta's heart?"

It is well known that after the death of the great statesman in 1882, M. Paul Bert had the heart removed from the body, preserved and sent to the keeping of some one, whose name has not yet transpired, at Cahors.

At the time of the unveiling of the Gambetta monument there, M. Bert announced that he intended to place the heart within the great memorial which was erected to the memory of the orator and statesman in Paris, but in 1886 M. Bert was appointed to the governorship of Tonquin and Annam, and he died in the far East on November 11 of that year. Seemingly he left no memorandum as to the place in which he had placed the heart.

The matter is shrouded in great mystery, and a diligent search is being made for the missing organ.

The Cruel Miss Smith.

From the Jester.

Jones—Where is Brown, Miss Smith?

The Beautiful Miss Smith—Oh, he has gone home, I believe.

Jones—Indeed? Why was that?

The B. Miss S.—Oh, because I wouldn't walk with him. So ridiculous! I couldn't walk with a man covered with tar.

Jones—Of course not. How did he get into that mess?

The B. Miss S.—Climbing some palings to pick me a flower I fancied.

From the Chicago Times.

Judge—This verdict could not have been reached on law and evidence.

Foreman of Jury—No, sir; we just used common sense.

Judge (promptly)—Overruled and set aside.

Not a Good Drink.

"Can you tell me where I can get a good drink of water?" inquired the Kansas prohibitionist.

"I cannot, sah. In fact, I neva understood that watah was a good drink, sah," replied the Kentucky libationist.

He will then come to Butte and prepare for his fight with Hawkins. Mr. Black will make the fight for November 1, with the privilege of postponement for one or two weeks. Hawkins is agreeable to this arrangement.

His offense is a crime both under the common law and the statute law of this state. An attempt at suicide is punishable with imprisonment not exceeding six months or a fine of $500 or both fine and imprisonment.
